THE CONVENTION.

The Arthur and Edmunds Forces Unite and Elect

John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, Temporary Chairman

A Heated Debate to Gain the Temporary Organization.

The Gossip Around the Leading Hotels.

The Contest Promises to be a Long and Exciting One.

Special to the Gazette.

CHICAGO, June 3d.—Senator Sabin, chairman of the republican national committee, called the convention to order at 12:25.

Prayer by Rev. Frank Bristol.

The call was read by Secretary Martin.

Senator Sabin then addressed the convention, and nominated Powell Clayton of Arkansas, for temporary chairman. The battle commenced at once, when Leago, of Massachusetts, nominated John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, and after a second demanded the call of the roll.

Morrow, of California, spoke against Lynch, and also Geo. Wm. Curtis, who urged avoiding a fight.

Amid great excitement and tremendous applause a heated discussion ensued. On temporary chairman question, the Blaine and Logan men supported Clayton, while the Arthur and Edmunds men supported Lynch. The roll was called.

CHICAGO, June 3—3:12 p. m.—Total vote for temporary chairman, 818; Lynch—431; Clayton—387. Mr. Lynch, a colored man, was escorted to the chair, and made an excellent speech.

CHICAGO, June 3.—1 p. m.—Powell Clayton moved to make the election of John R. Lynch unanimous, which was carried amid great enthusiasm, and Mr. Lynch was declared elected temporary chairman of the convention.

[Jno. R. Lynch, of Mississippi, one of the delegates from that state, is a colored man. This election to the office of temporary chairman in the Chicago convention is an honor to his race that should be appreciated.]

CHICAGO, June 3.—Monday was a hot day. The weather was not so warm as on Sunday, but the political situation was just seething. Everybody was getting in his best work for his man, and the excitement was high. However, the race is still anybody's, with the chances in favor of some of the less prominently spoken of aspirants. Blaine seems to have made some important gains of strength, but the true significance of them will not be developed until after the convention meets.

AT THE GRAND PACIFIC

the corridors and lobbies presented a lively scene. Scattered here and there, with hardly room for locomotion between them, were groups of excited men discussing the merits of the several gentlemen who-se friends are urging them for the first place in the national government. The independent conference committee, prominent among whom were were industriously engaged in endeavoring to convince the delegates that there was no hope for the Republican cause if the senator from Vermont was not the nominee, or some one other than the two leading candidates.

The Palmer house was the scene of very active work. The house was given over entirely to the use of the boomers. Men stood in groups everywhere talking earnestly, and in some cases excitedly, over the situation. Here could be seen Judge Gibbs and Register Bruce two of the most prominent colored men present at the convention, the former from Arkansas. At the Sherman and others hotels it would be only repeating what has been already written above to describe the scenes. At thom all occasionally a group of enthusiastic supporters of this or that candidate would get together and for a time diverting the attention of the crowd from the discussions and and appeals and gathering it around them in a solid mass to break up shortly with wild hurrahs for the different favorites.

The Herald's man says: "To the apparent boom for Blaine Saturday night and Sunday, based upon reports and claims, was added on Monday the faint, tangible victory for Blaine. The selection by the combined Blaine and Logan forces of Powell Clayton for temporary chairman of the convention was a practical, important triumph. The Arthur men sought, so far as possible, to avoid making an issue by supporting Clayton with a portion of their strength, though the Blaine strength was cast nearly solid for the Arkansan.

"But it must not be supposed that the Blaine strength in the committee is as great as the vote—27 to 14—would indicate. Not only did the Arthur men seek to avoid a test of strength, but several southern committeemen voted for Clayton because he is a southern man, and the south wants recognition.

"The effect of this action of the committee was to give another impetus to the Blaine movement. The comment was general that Elkins and his co-laborers had not only won the first blood, but adroitly cut the south in two, and this seems true to a large extent. But by defeating Hoar, the direct representative of Edmundism, the Blaine men have flaunted a red flag in New England's face. 'How can you give Edmunds such an insult as that?' cried Dutcher, of New York to some Massachusetts delegates; 'beating Senator Hoar with a man like Clayton—it is positively disgraceful.' Arthur men were busy all evening trying to stir up resentment among the Edmunds men, but this was quickly checkmated by the other side circulating the report that Hoar was on the Blaine slate for permanent chairman. This gained much credence, and quickly allayed the brewing excitement.

"Later in the night it appeared that this plan is seriously considered by the Blaine managers. They practically decided to support Senator Hoar for the place, abandoning Galusha Grow, though this ticket was not finally adopted. The advantages of this programme are obvious. It will prevent the threatened increase of the bitterness in New England and render less liable a solid anti-Blaine vote from that quarter in the case of a break in the Edmunds following. Further, Senator Hoar is for Blaine after Edmunds, and is not too full of confidence in Edmund's success. He declared to several gentlemen he would do all in his power to nominate Blaine should Arthur's success become imminent. It is claimed that one-third of the Massachusetts delegation will follow Hoar, there being at least three warm Blaine men among them, and others indifferent. Elkins and his colleagues are not losing any time on this chairmanship business.

"Next in importance to the chairmanship was the failure of the Arthur attempt to force Harrison into the field, a scheme to take votes away from Blaine. It seems that some of the Gresham men in Indiana are not for Arthur, and they objected to the Harrison opposition when it became known that the senator would allow his name to be presented if indorsed by the Indiana delegation. A number of the Blaine men also refused to be caught in this Arthur trap, and the chances are at this writing that Indiana will not present a candidate.

"Of great importance, also, was a conference held between certain Sherman and Edmunds leaders, with a view to ascertaining if the followers of each could be relied on to stick. Mutual assurances were given, and the result was a noticeable stiffening of the back-bone of both. The Sherman-Edmunds plan is to hold their own strength well in hand and endeavor to beat both Blaine and Arthur. There is no combination of Sherman and Edmunds—merely an agreement to stand firm. An effort was made to bring Logan into the same category, but, though assurances of the strongest kind were given by Long Jones and Shepard that Logan was in the race to stay, the Edmunds and Sherman managers suspect what has been oft suspected before, either that Logan's following has been tampered with by Cullom in Arthur's behalf, or that the Blaine enthusiasm has proved too strong for some of the old-time Blaine men on the Illinois delegation.

"While gathering strength for themselves wherever possible, the Edmunds and Sherman managers are also giving incidental assistance to Arthur. They desire the two leaders to enter the race with an equal following, and therefore hope for Arthur gains from Blaine. Their object is a dead-lock, to be broken only by the success of one or the other of the conservatives. They figure Blaine and Arthur at about 300 votes each—with Blaine slightly ahead—Sherman, Edmunds, Hawley and Logan holding the other 200, and declare that if the latter will stand firm both leaders can be beaten.

"The situation, is that Blaine is likely to capture the organization, of the convention, control the committee on credentials, lead on the first ballot, and then hold a reserve strength sure to send him nearer the prize on the second.

"The present probabilities are that he will start with about 340 votes, and after a gain of a dozen or twenty more on the second proceed to take the nomination on the third or fourth."

The writer adds, however, that a few hours may make all the difference in the world, and proceeds as follows:

"The belief is now current among most close observers that Mr. Blaine has seventy-five chances out of the hundred to win. He has the delegates, who are supported by an intense popular feeling, and his interests are being handled more skillfully than any convention campaign of the last dozen years, excepting the Grant management of four years ago.

"If Blaine loses this nomination it will be wrested from him—a quick combination of coup d'etat almost unparalleled in American politics."

The Times summarizes the situation as follows: "Neither Arthur nor Blaine can be nominated!" Such was the general verdict of the cool and unprejudiced observers of the lively fray going on among the politicians engaged in the pleasant and exciting pastime of president-making at all the hotels, in the lobbies as well as in the headquarters, and in private rooms, and even active supporters of both the leading candidates admitted the justice of the verdict. At the same time, to the superficial observer, the Blaine boom seemed to have grown a perfect tornado, sweeping everything before it with irresistible power. If speeches, arguments, cheering, parading about with badges, flaunting banners with mottoes inscribed on them, could nominate a candidate, James G. Blaine, of Maine, would certainly be the nominee of the convention. But going below the surface of all the noise and bluster of the Blaine crowd one could not detect any good reasons for the claim that the voting strength of the Blaine faction in the convention had increased, however overpowering its shouting strength might appear in the lively throng of the last day before the convention.

While the Blaine shouters seemed to have the day, the workers for dark horses were busier than ever. Every hour brought fresh rumors of combinations the Arthur or Blaine men had entered into, and at times it seemed as if "anything to beat Arthur" was the foldery on the one side, and "anything to down Blaine" on the other. The Blaine men were very anxious to make it appear that the Logan forces would come to their support, but their claim in this direction received a very strong quietus early in the day, when the delegations from the Pacific coast made a tour of the different headquarters. Headed by Judge Busch, of California, who was formerly an Illinoisian, they filed about noon into the Illinois headquarters, where they were received with friendly cheers. Judge Busch made a neat little speech, alluding to the fact that the pioneers in the Pacific states looked upon Illinois as their home, and felt therefore that Illinois should be in sympathy with them, and then stating that they wanted Blaine, their best friend in their Chinese affliction, for president, appealed to Illinois, where Blaine was held in equally high esteem, to come to the rescue of the plumed knight. Then Col. Clark E. Carr, delegate-at-large from Illinois, made a reply. He said Illinois looked indeed with pride on the denizens of the Pacific coast, to whom she was bound by the strong ties of kinship and early fellowship. But Illinois had a candidate for president who had done even more for the Pacific coast than the man from Maine could ever claim to have done, for, while others had been acquiring schools and colleges the mastery of grammar and polished scholarship for which they were now renowned, John A. Logan had been in the field of battle, and had helped as a soldier to gain for this country the very territory on the Pacific coast which other sons of Illinois had helped to develop into unparalleled wealth and grandeur. Illinois wanted to see John A. Logan at the head of this nation, and while she would not ask her sons and friends on the Pacific coast to abandon their first choice before the contest had begun, she hoped that they would wheel into line and show their gratitude to Illinois and her favorite son by casting their ballots for John A. Logan. After this there was cheering and hand shaking, and the California delegates ceased thereafter to claim that Logan's candidacy was only a side-show to the Blaine boom.

The supporters of Arthur received strong reinforcements by the arrival of the New York delegation, headed by Biglin; by the advent of Tom Ochiltree, and by Government Printer S. P. Rounds, who brought a number of workers with him. They all made a strong fight against the Blaine men wherever they met them, and were not very choice in the mode of warfare. They distributed copies of the latest issue of Puck, which caps the climax of the mud-throwing that sheet has indulged in against Blaine, and also made use of the appearance of a delegation from the New York Typographical union, which asks the Republican party to boycott The New York Tribune, the chief advocate of Blaine, and the expulsion of Whitelaw Reid, Blaine's chief bugler, from the Republican party, in the name of the trades unions of the country. They also presented the argument that Blaine's coming from Maine, the hotbed of prohibition, and the slurs he had cast on Schurz on account of the latter's nationality, made him exceedingly unpopular with the large German element, and that his nomination would jeopardize the Republican ticket in all states where the German element held the balance of power.

The colored delegates received particular attention at the hands of the Arthur men, and it was positively asserted that they would stand by the president on the first ballot, the claims of a sell-out to Blaine, notwithstanding. A great many colored men, however, were around in the crowd sporting Blaine badges, and some of the loudest talk of the day was indulged in by "dusky" delegates. Good judges are of the opinion that the colored vote will stand by Arthur on the first ballot, but will break away on the second, probably to Sherman or Logan, whose missionaries were hard at work among them and brought favorable reports to headquarters.

A very cautious member of the Edmunds party summed up the situation as follows: "Blaine will lead Arthur on the first ballot about 40 votes, both together polling not much over 620 votes; Edmunds will have nearly 100, Logan about 80, and Sherman about 40 votes, the rest will go to Hawley and Lincoln. The break will occur on the second or third ballot from Arthur in favor of Edmunds, swelling the latter's vote to about the same size as that of Blaine, and then a combined effort will be made in favor of Gresham or Lincoln." Other observers claimed that the break would occur in favor of Gen. Sherman; others again that the first break would be made in favor of Logan, but all agreed that neither Arthur nor Blaine would be nominated, and that the supporters of the former would be the first to scatter.

The Times gives an estimate of the probable vote of the first ballot as follows: Arthur, 208; Blaine, 338; Edmunds, 85; Logan, 58; Sherman, 23; Hawley, 12.

ORGANIZATION OF THE DELEGATIONS.

The delegations met during the day and selected members of the convention committees, chairmen and other officers.

At a meeting of the Pennsylvania delegation at the Grand Pacific hotel, John Stewart was elected chairman of the delegation, Galusha A. Grow was named for permanent chairman of the national convention, W. H. Leeds for the committee of permanent organization, W. H. Jessup, committee on platform. Gen. B. F. Fisher was selected as the choice of the delegation for membership on the committee of credentials and Col. Thomas M. Payne for the committee on rules.

Minnesota—Chairman, Senator D. M. Sabin; secretary, C. Graves; vice president of the convention, A. Barto; rules of order and proceedings, T. H. Armstrong; resolutions, Liberty Hall; credentials, R. B. Langdon; organization, A. B. Gould. A resolution was adopted providing that before each ballot and vote the roll should be called and the votes given viva voce.

Illinois—Chairman, Shelby M. Cullom; vice president of convention, Gen. Rinaker; secretary, Charles T. Stratton; committee on credentials, Burton C. Cook; committee on organization, R. A. Holbert; rules and order of business, L. C. Collins, Jr.; resolutions, Clark E. Carr. A committee of five was appointed to select a member of the national committee. Gen. Logan, in case he should not be nominated for the presidency, will probably be chosen as his own successor by the committee.

Colorado—Chairman, William A. Hamill; credentials, W. A. Hamill; resolutions, S. H. Elbert; rules and order of business, Alexander Gullett; assistant secretary, A. L. Emigh; vice president, Benjamin F. Crowell; organization, C. C. Davis.

Indiana—The delegation elected Richard H. Thompson, of Terre Haute, chairman; Gus Veach, vice president of the convention; John C. New, member of the national committee on resolutions; J. H. Mellettee, member of committee on rules and order of business; George B. Williams, member of the committee on permanent organization.

Kansas—P. B. Plumb, chairman; Cyrus Leland, secretary; Joseph B. Root, for vice president of the convention; John A. Martin, member of the national committee.

Nebraska—John M. Thurston, chairman; E. L. Reed, for vice president of the convention; Church Howe, member of the national committee; W. T. Scott, member of the committee on credentials.

Wisconsin—Chairman, E. W. Keyes; vice president, E. H. Brodhead; secretary, George B. Shaw; credentials, J. H. Mead; resolutions, Calvert Spensley; organization, C. M. Butt; rules and order of business, Gen. Winkler; member of national committee, Edward Sanderson.

Michigan—Chairman, Roswell G. Horr; secretary, Seth C. Moffett; vice president, George W. Webber; organization, Seth T. Reid; credentials, Edwin C. Nichols; member of national committee, John Sanborn; resolutions, Judge W. A. Underwood; rules, G. W. Bell.

New York—Chairman, George W. Curtis; secretary, Titus Sheard; credentials, E. H. Hobbs; organization, H. G. Burleigh; rules, George Cahoon; resolutions, William Dowd; member of national committee, John D. Lawson; vice president of convention, Thomas Cornell.

Massachusetts selected George F. Hoar for chairman; Maine, George C. Wing; California, William W. Morrow. The other states organizing were: Oregon, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia (Mahone delegation), Arkansas, Maryland, Kentucky, West Virginia, Delaware, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The National committee held a meeting and made its final preparations for the convention. The most important business was the selection of a temporary chairman and the disposition of contests.

In the former matter there was an evident fight between the Blaine and Arthur men outside of the committee, but that body considered it of no political significance, and the favored man declared that it was only a recognition of southern Republicans, for which he returned thanks in an eloquent speech.

Four candidates were nominated: Powell Clayton, of Arkansas; Geo. F. Hoar, of Massachusetts; R. S. Horr, of Michigan; and G. A. Grow, of Pennsylvania. The vote stood; Clayton, 27; Hoar, 14; Grow, 2; Horr, 2.

The next business was the contests in several southern districts, which were settled by agreeing to the reports of the sub-committees; the contest from the Twenty-second district of Pennsylvania, in which the contestants were admitted; and in the Second district, same state, in which Jas. E. Sayers was admitted.

John J. O'Brien and Matthew H. Brady were admitted from the Sixth New York district, and from the Nineteenth district of the same state George Campbell and Hiram Griggs.

There were two reports presented on the contest in the Second district of Illinois. The majority report, submitted by Mr. Aldrich, recommended that William S. Powell and William E. Kent be admitted. The minority report, recommending William H. Ruger and Charles E. Piper, Logan delegates, was, however, adopted by the committee.

There was no particular significance attached to these decisions, except that the two men seated in the Second Illinois district were Arthur men.

News from the Soudan.

CAIRO, June 3.—The governor of Dongola telegraphs that the report of the fall of Berber is untrue. Not only does the town remain in charge of the garrison, but Khalifa Pasha in a recent action gained a decisive victory over the rebels.

The latest advices from Khartoum indicate that the situation practically is unchanged. Gen. Gordon still holds out, but no recent collisions between the opposing forces are reported.

The rebels made another attack on Suakim, but were repulsed with a loss of one killed and four wounded.

Boats, Bicycles and Hay Fever.

Nature has resolved that all the people shall not enjoy themselves at once. With the opening of the season of outdoor sports comes the time of trouble for the poor victims of Hay Fever. For them flowers have no odor, and the summer little or no beauty. To snuff, sneeze and wipe their weeping eyes for three or four successive months:—this is their pitiable portion. Whether this form of catarrh is called hay-fever, hay-cold, rose-cold or rose-fever, makes no difference; they suffer just the same. There is no help in sea-voyages, there is no help in high mountain air. These only lighten the pocket and leave the disease unabated. But there is a positive cure in Ely's Cream Balm. We could cram these columns with grateful letters of the rescued. Try it and join them. If you continue to suffer it is because you neglect a remedy as sure as it is cheap and pleasant.

Two of the Candidates.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 3.—President Arthur passed a quiet day at the executive mansion, reflecting upon the progress of affairs at Chicago, of which he was kept well informed over the private telegraph wire running into the mansion, by his faithful supporters in that city.

Ex-Secretary Blaine and family left Washington for New York enroute to his home in Augusta, Me.

"Objector" Holman in the Barber Shop.

[Washington Cor. Philadelphia Record.]

The other day some Michigan members who wanted to get a bill through the house appropriating $800,000 more for one of those never-built public buildings planned a scheme by which they thought to circumvent the vigilant objector. They gave the barber in the little barber shop under the gallery next to the Democratic cloak-room $1 upon his promise that he would detain Holman as long as possible the next time the old gentleman came in to be shaved. Then they watched Holman closely. Finally he arose at a moment when nothing startling was in sight, and walked back to the barber shop. Once within, the barber plied his blandishments. He shaved first as slowly as possible. That through he suggested that the judge's hair was entirely too long. The judge thought not; and, besides, he was in a hurry. But before he could get out of the chair the barber had snipped off a generous lock of hair, so he had to submit to a prolonged hair-cutting. Then the barber suggested a shampoo. The judge didn't have time. But the judge needed it so much. "There!" and the cool liquid spurted over his head. So his head was shampooed. Altogether that ingenious barber used up forty-five minutes in earning that dollar. Meanwhile the Michigan man had been hard at work "catching the speaker's eye." He had to be first told what his eye was wanted for, and then followed the long race for it. At last it was caught. "Mr. Speaker," said the eager Michigan man excitedly, with one eye on the door of the barber-shop, "I move——" But he never got any further, for at that instant Holman emerged from the barber-shop, and there was nothing for the Michigan man to do but to retreat as gracefully as possible.

The Habit of Sunday Stuffing.

[N. Sizer in Phrenological Journal.]

This habit has grown to be common in our large cities, where men live at a distance from their business places, and therefore take a light lunch every day during the week. When Sunday comes, they have leisure for breakfast, and little exercise during the forenoon; then have a royal dinner at 2 o'clock, and perhaps lazy lounging and "lying off," as it is called, during the afternoon, they thus eat twice as much on Sunday as they do other days. The appetite is just as good as it would be if they were engaged in their ordinary occupations, but the needs of the system are not half so great when a person is idle as when he is actively or laboriously engaged in business, and the result is that Monday is a blue day to very many. It is a day of headaches and ill-feeling, and by Wednesday perhaps they get back into their normal track again, and by Saturday are ready for another stuffing on Sunday.

We believe that dyspepsia in city men originates, in nine cases out of ten, in the practice of over-eating, and taking little exercise on Sunday.

Foreign Note.

[Texas Siftings.]

An American, traveling in Germany, was shown through one of the ducal palaces. After he had sufficiently admired all the art, treasures, etc., he asked the janitor who was showing him through the edifice:

"Is there anything else worth looking at in this old shebang?"

The janitor drew the visitor to the window and in a mysterious whisper, said:

"If you will give me a thaler, I'll let you listen at this window, and perhaps this afternoon you can hear his royal highness roll nine-pins in the court-yard."

A Model Physician.

[New York Sun.]

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life." "You exaggerate," said the doctor mildly: "you really owe me for fifteen visits; that is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

Social Amenities.

[Philadelphia Call.]

"What a fresh complexion Miss B. has," said a gentleman to a young lady at a party.

"Yes," replied the lady, who was a rival of Miss B.'s; "it's quite early in the evening yet, you know, and it hasn't had time to dry."

Dr. Price—Dear Sir: I have analyzed Baking Powders advertised as absolutely pure, and find they contain AMMONIA. I also find contrary to my expectation that cakes baked with such powders still retain Ammonia. Therefore I cannot believe any longer that the use of so POWERFUL A DRUG in baking is indifferent to PUBLIC HEALTH. DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING Contains no ammonia. Gentlemen: In Baking Powders advertised as absolutely pure, I have found, on analysis, Ammonia. Considering the source of Ammonia, namely, that of effete and decomposing organic matter, and that it is not entirely dissipated in the oven, as has been conclusively proven in practice as well as by science, I should not think of using a powder containing it in my own family, nor of recommending it for general use, but would prefer a baking powder made of wholesome materials, such as I have found Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder to be.

Very Respectfully, C. B. GIBSON, Analytical Chemist.

National Finances.

WASHINGTON CITY, June 3.—The monthly debt statement shows a decrease of $4,763,241 in the public debt during May, and $91,823,714 during eleven months of the fiscal year ending May 31. The total debt now, less cash in the treasury, is $1,459,207,492, and of this amount $1,244,845,050 is interest bearing debt. The available cash balance in the treasury now is $147,317,660, a decrease for the month of nearly $5,000,000. The gold coin and gold bullion assets have run up from $196,000,000 on April 30 to $201,000,000 on May 21, gold certificate assets amount to about $40,000,000, with $90,000,000 gold certificates outstanding. Customs receipts for the year will undoubtedly run up to $196,000,000 this fiscal year against $214,000,000 for the preceding year.

Excitement in Pittsburg Over the Statement of President Riddle.

His Charges Denounced as Deliberate Lies—The Capture of Eno—A Judge on Fraud in High Places.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 3.—Reports from the hospital state that Mr. Riddle continues in a very low condition. His statement, which appeared in the evening papers, created intense excitement among all classes. Watson could by no means be induced to make any statement whatever, while M. K. McMullin, whom Mr. Riddle named as one of the fictitious firms, would not reply to any questions on the subject. Several of the bank directors could not be found for the purpose of securing their views, but of those who were addressed, not one was there but that denied the statement as a "tissue of falsehoods." Said Mr. Swearingen: "On the first night of his illness, when Mr. Laughlin and Mr. Brown visited him, Riddle without solicitation, said: 'Any person who ever accused either Mr. Laughlin or Mr. Brown of any wrong doing, will tell a —— lie.' Now, however, he is making accusations himself. There is nothing in my whole connection as a director in the bank that I am afraid to have made public."

Mr. D. W. C. Carroll said: "I never bought a barrel of oil in my life, either individually or for the bank. If Riddle says I ever bought a barrel of oil—or says that I know the Penn bank was engaged in oil speculation—he tells a deliberate lie. Why, if I knew the bank was purchasing oil I would have severed my connection with it quick as lightning. Riddle has told me that neither he nor the bank were engaged in buying oil."

The same was said by other directors, who were equally as emphatic in their denunciation of Riddle. It is thought that the end is not yet.

[Riddle's statement referred to above is to the effect that the directors were responsible for the condition of the bank, and that they speculated in oil against his protest.]

John C. Eno's Case.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Mr. Amos R. Eno, the father of the fugitive ex-bank president, John C. Eno, was questioned on the subject of his son's return. He stated that it would probably be useless to contest the extradition proceedings. If the charge of forgery can be sustained—and the new penal code is very far-reaching in this respect—opposition will be unwise. John's brother, he said, has gone to Quebec to see justice done, and justice is all that can be expected under the present state of public feeling. "Let me tell you," he added, "that my son and I are two different persons. We don't agree on many points."

"Have you any idea as to your son's plans?" "I have, but cannot reveal it at present. I think he is determined to fight."

Mr. Eno admitted with some reluctance that Mrs. John C. Eno had left for Quebec. Mr. O. D. Roberts, cashier of the Second National bank, said that their attorney had assured them that there was little chance for Eno to escape, and that he would be extradited on the charge of forgery, the penal code covering his offense completely. If the case was properly conducted, Eno could be brought back to this city within a week. Assistant District Attorney Foster is considering the advisability of having Father Ducey, Eno's companion, also arrested as an accessory. The case of Ducey is to be laid before the cardinal at once for official action on the part of the church. It is learned that Eno left his house the day before it was searched by the marshals.

QUEBEC, June 3.—John C. Eno, the New York bank defaulter, arrested here while about sailing, was brought before Judge Ferriere of the queens bench, on a writ of habeas corpus. Eno came into court accompanied by Gale, the high constable of Quebec. There was a large array of legal talent on both sides, among whom were John Hallams the deputy marshal of the United States, who watched the case on behalf of his government; Mr. Hubbard, of New York, who watched the interests of the Second National bank and others. Dunbar, Q. C., of Quebec, on behalf of the accused, asked for Eno's release, principally on the ground of the informality and illegality of the warrant issued for his arrest, which he said was so defective that the magistrate ought to be arrested for issuing it. Other counsel for the defense followed in the same strain. Davidson, Q. C., appeared on behalf of the defrauded bank, and resisted the application for the discharge of the accused. He held that the warrant was legally issued, and cited authorities in support of his argument. After some cross firing between counsel, the judge adjourned the court a few hours, in order to consider the case. On resuming he recapitulated the case and the arguments of the counsel, and declared the warrant so fatally defective that he was obliged to discharge the prisoner, which he did. Bissonnette, the constable who made the arrest, then exhibited another warrant for Eno, but the judge threatened him with punishment for contempt if he dared to execute in the presence of the court.

Ward Disappears and Reappears.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The greatest excitement prevailed at Ludlow Street jail over the rumor that Ferdinand Ward had made his escape. Ward, accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Dowling and Brown, left the jail at 10 o'clock a. m. Monday, and did not return until 1:30 Tuesday morning. Where, or how he spent the day cannot be learned, but it is surmised he was engaged in endeavoring to secure bail.

The Guilty in High Places.

NEW YORK, June 3.—After swearing in the grand jury, Judge Gildersleeve addressed them at some length on the subject of the many offenses against property on the part of trusted officials which have recently been discovered. He reproved severely the prevalent spirit of speculation and of recklessness born of extravagance and the greed of riches. He declared that this spirit has developed a class of criminals from walks in life where we expected to find men who had some respect for the law, and for the rights of others. "One thief of this kind," he said, "does more harm than 100 ordinary thieves. While in obedience to the law we are punishing the low thieves from the sloughs and slums of the city for stealing small sums, let us not neglect the guilty in high places, who steal large sums and are answerable to the same law."

The jury were evidently much impressed by the judge's remarks.

Louise Michel and Krapolkine.

PARIS, June 3.—It is generally believed in Paris that Prince Krapolkine, the noted scientist, and Louise Michel, the communist, who are confined for alleged conspiracies against the government, will soon be pardoned, and will be released on the occasion of the national fete of the fall of the bastile.

ROSS DEFEATS THE JAP.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The attendance at Irving hall, when Matsada Sorakichi and Duncan Ross contended in a mixed bout, was large, but the contest was only moderate as regards science. It was nearly 9 o'clock when the men came on the stage, but they soon got to work, and for thirty-four minutes they tugged at each other before a decision was arrived at. During this time Ross threw his antagonist at least a dozen times, but the referee would not allow a fall. The second bout was in the Japanese style, and this Matsada won in 32 seconds. The third fall was Lancashire style, and Ross won in 14 minutes. The fourth tussle, which was according to the Japanese rules, was also won by Ross in just 6 seconds. The Jap then retired a defeated man.

The Very Latest.

CHICAGO, June 3.—A Washington special says that Representative Broadhead and Senator Vest called on Mr. Tilden in New York on Saturday. Mr. Broadhead said that he found Mr. Tilden in much better health than he anticipated, and was astonished at his activity. Mr. Tilden called his visitors' attention to the fact that he weighed more than he did when they last met, and while he did not say that he would accept the nomination, they left him with the impression that he would.

Many hundred copies of a book entitled "How a British Subject Became President of the United States," have reached here for distribution among delegates to the convention. The book is by A. P. It is not known which of the president's rivals for the nomination is responsible for this campaign movement.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough run riot in the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty; from time out of memory they have corrupted the blood, demoralized the joints, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs their damages, renews the blood, eases the joints, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the troubled brain, and ensures delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been abundantly tried. From far and near come testimonials from well-known persons who had long been sufferers. It has turned their diseases out. It has cured them. That is all,—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true work is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer;" "Victor;" "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as VICTOR over the attacks of these terrible maladies, and CONQUEROR of the frightful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

NAMESAKES.

"Close the shutters, Kitty. What a wild night, to be sure!"

"The rain is coming down in floods," said a young girl, peering out into the pitchy darkness.

A barrack ground (stiff and ugly under the most favorable circumstances), looking like some desert waste in the howling wind and driving rain, was just visible.

"Why, Aunt Bell," she continued, pausing with one hand on the shutter, "here is a name scratched on the pane of glass. I never noticed it till this minute."

"What is the name?" asked the old lady, indifferently, half asleep in her cosy armchair by the fireside.

"K-i-n-l o-c-h—'Kinloch, Scots Greys, 1810,'" read the girl; "and then 'Kitty,' written very badly just below."

"Kinloch! Kitty!" said Aunt Bell, starting up with sudden interest. "Why that must be the same man!" Then she sank back again, murmuring: "Ah, Kitty! there was love in those days, and romance, too!"

"Is there no love now?" said her niece, coming to her aunt's side and kneeling down on the hearth-rug.

The rudy flames and glow from the fire lit up the girl's chestnut hair, fair complexion, and bright, hazel eyes.

Aunt Bell looked lovingly down at the piquant little face held up to her, and said: "Now and again we meet some of the right kind; but would you like to hear the story of that namesake of yours, Kitty?"

"Very much."

"Well, fifty years ago, as you can easily reckon, I was a girl of 19, and was invited to spend the summer months with my aunt, who then had one of the finest houses in this county of Kildare.

"Several regiments were stationed at the camp and at a neighboring village, so you may imagine the girls of the party and I looked forward to having a gay time. Oh! those few short summer months, Kitty! I grow young again when I think of them! The rides across the Curragh in the fresh morning air, when in parties of ten or twelve we would gallop for miles on those breezy stretches of emerald turf, the handsome officers who enjoyed having hide and seek in the dusky evening hours all over the old-fashioned house, starting out of the corners and from behind doors, and chasing us breathless down the slippery oaken corridors. Then, tired, out, we would stroll into the garden, and under the trees there would be songs, flirtations, and whispered confidences and promises made by the score and never fulfilled.

"What a mad, merry time it was! And the maddest, the merriest, the handsomest of all was a young Scotch lieutenant, Kinloch Kinloch. His mother was Irish, and had bequeathed her good looks and propensity for joking. And now for Kitty, the heroine. She was the daughter of an old gardener who lived about a mile away from my aunt's house, and as all the distractingly pretty women that have made men do foolish things, I am sure Kitty was one of the prettiest. No description could come up to the original; but I can tell you that she had the Irish blue eye; a complexion like milk; hair of the brightest and silkiest chestnut, curling in little rings all over brow and neck, and a slender, upright figure, the envy of half our girls. One day, as a large party of us were standing chattering under the trees, Kitty passed us with a basket of fruit.

"Kinloch for the first time noticed the girl, and seemed struck dumb with amazement. He stood at a little distance and kept his eyes fixed on her. It was love from that very moment, and every one noticed it.

"All the other young fellows, of course, immediately swarmed round the girl's basket and began helping themselves with not so much as a 'By your leave.' Kitty began expostulating, but they put her off.

"'Sure, Kitty,' said one, 'and you would like us to have the best, I'll be bound.'

"And another: 'Mahone, one kiss from that cheek with the bloom of the peach upon it will save you from these rascally thieves, for I will fight them all for such a favor!'

"But Kitty was not to be bribed, and seemed about to resign herself to the loss of her fruit, when Kinloch shouldered his way into the group, and giving the last speaker a friendly push, cried, 'Leave the girl alone, Grant!' And then, turning to Kitty, took the basket out of her hands, saying, 'It is too heavy for your little arms, and there will come no one stealing your fruit now, I'm thinking!'

"'I thank you,' said Kitty, gratefully, and walked along by his side.

"'That is the first time I have seen "my lady" allow any one to fetch or carry her,' said my brother.

"'There is no gainsaying Kinloch, then, as I can tell you, Harry!' I cried; 'for he always gets his own way in what he wants.'

"'Especially when it has to do with pretty girls!' sneered Grant.

"'Treason!' we all shouted in a breath. 'Kinloch is the same to us all, to everybody.'

"'Of course,' said Grant, recovering his temper; 'but are you not all pretty girls?'

"We laughed, and did not deny the soft impeachment; so the momentary breach was healed. That was the last time we noticed Kitty coming up to our house with her fruit. We know nothing we could have said or done would have prevented her, but we were not quite so sure about Kinloch, who ever since that little episode had wandered about like a distressed lover.

"One day we met Kitty in one of the lanes, and said to her, 'How is it you never come our way now?'

"The girl blushed.

"'Father prefers to take up the things himself,' she murmured; for which painfully apparent fib we instantly forgave her.

"The days passed on, and Kinloch, who had before been the life of our expeditions, was now generally absent. Where he had been was evident, for we often caught a glimpse of chestnut hair shining through the trees, or the old picturesque shawl draped over Kitty's head and shoulders, with her round, dimpled arms appearing just below. Kinloch's regiment had been ordered away to another part of Ireland; and one morning, a few days before he was to go, we begged for his company to a picnic we had arranged to have with one or two other families.

"'Thanks very much,' he said; 'but I am afraid I shall be too busy.'

"'Oh, but you must come!' we all cried. 'We counted upon you.'

"'But I—I have so many things to do to-day.'

"Here he stopped, and blushed. We girls were looking very inquisitive, and some of the men had a perceptible sneer on their faces.

"'He has got his lady-love to bid good-bye to, I daresay,' suggested Phillip Grant.

"Kinloch turned on him with blazing eyes. We all kept back. They were like globes of fire.

"'Confound it, sir!' he cried, 'and suppose I have! what is that to you?'

"We all looked at Philip; he was very white, but he shrugged his shoulders indifferently and wisely forebore to answer. Kinloch's temper cooled down as rapidly as it had arisen.

"'I am sorry to disappoint you, girls,' he said, gently, 'but you will have to excuse me.' And, bowing, he walked off.

"'We watched his upright, manly figure striding along till he disappeared, and then we all looked at each and sighed.

"'A clear case,' said one girl.

"'Head over heels.'

"'What will he do?'

"'How can he marry her?'

"'Kitty can look after herself.'

"'But I am sure she is in love; she never has been before.'

"'He will go away and forget her—

He gave the bridal rein a shake,
Said, 'Adieu! for evermore,
My love!
And adieu for evermore.'

"'Never! said I; nothing of the kind will happen. I am sure he will marry her.'

"That evening Kinloch made his way to the old gardener's cottage. His face was pale, but he had a determined look in the corners of his mouth, and he carried his head well thrown back, and stepped lightly along. The girl had just set her father's supper before him, and had gone out to rest in the garden and watch the still beauties of the night. The air was fresh, and in the heavens the full moon was hurrying through its star-spangled course. The reeds in a neighboring stream rustled and shivered in the breeze, and a large night moth or two came sailing up and bumped against Kitty's white kerchief on their way to the fatal candle shining in the window.

"The girl looked up to the sky and tears filled her eyes. Was it the brightness of the moon?

"'Why do you weep, Kitty?' said a voice at her side.

"No need to turn to look for the speaker! The girl buried her face in her hands and sobbed afresh.

"'You are going away,' she said.

"'Yes, I am going away,' said Kinloch; 'but you will come with me, Kitty, for you love me.'

"'I love you, but I shall not accompany you.'

"'But you must. I have spoken to the old priest and he is ready to marry us.'

"'Kinloch,' she said looking up into her lover's face with a sweet, serious smile. 'you have made me love you, for I could not help it; but you cannot make me marry you.'

"'Oh, but you will, darling, won't you, Kitty?' he went on, eagerly. 'You know I can marry now, because I came of age the other day, and I have much more than my pay now. Is that what you are thinking of?'

"'How could I think about that? Why will you not understand, Kinloch? Your proud old father, and your silver-haired, stately mother, how could they bear for one of their sons to marry an Irish peasant girl?'

"You have nothing to learn from the highest lady in the land, my darling,' he said fondly; 'and younger sons are not expected to marry heiresses.'

"But she shook her head resolutely.

"'And this is how you lightly fling away a man's happiness for life?'

"'A few days pain now to save you years of regret in the future.'

"The young man looked at the girl perplexed. Where could she have learned such sentiments? Where had she gained the strength to express them so freely? He then said slowly and solemnly, as if taking an oath: 'Look yonder, Kitty! That is the evening star. So surely as it will shine in the heavens five, ten or twenty years, as surely will my love remain unchanged for you. Bid me come back when you will, Kitty, and if I have breath in my body and strength to do it, I will come.'

"'Come back in ten years, Kinloch. I will be true to you and wait till then. I will try and improve myself—make myself more worthy of your love.'

"'Keep as you are, Kitty—remain unchanged,' said the young man jealously, 'lest when I come again I shall not see in you the last look I took away with me, my life, my love!' he murmured passionately; and kissing her sweet brow and mouth, folding her in one last embrace, he sighed and left her.

"She turned to go into the cottage. A large downy moth which had been bumping against the little window sailed in before her, circled thrice round the candle, and flew into its alluring brightness. The candle flickered and went out; the moth dropped down with a thud upon the table, dead. Kitty, with eyes blinded by tears and with shaking hands, relit, though somewhat tardily, the light.

"'Kitty, my girl,' said the old man, pointing significantly to the singed insect, 'don't be as foolish as that silly thing. Its eyes were dazzled, and it had no strength to resist the fatal fascination.'

"'Father, said the girl, stooping down and kissing his gray locks, 'you may trust me.'"

Here Aunt Bell stopped.

"Is it interesting? Shall I go on?"

"Oh, do! Did he come back?" said her niece.

"Well, the years passed on, and the girl was joked and teased, and had many offers of marriage; but she was firm and would listen to none. At last the young fellows grew weary of their fruitless attempts at love-making and the greater part left her alone. A few, more unkind, would ask when she expected her young gentleman home, and taunted her in cutting speeches and insinuations.

"Nine years went by, and then there came the battle of Waterloo, when officers and men went down in hundreds together. Still no word from Kinloch, and Kitty's heart, which had never failed in its lightness, nor her step in its speed, now sank and faltered for the first time. Early in the next year—in fact on New Year's night—the officers gave a ball, and every young girl and young man for miles around was invited. Girls were in great demand and I went down to my aunt's house especially for that night. I was anxious to see Kitty myself and to find out how the years had passed over her head.

"You think, perhaps, 28 was rather old to be called a girl—do you Kitty? Well, I felt almost the same as I did when I was 16, and quite as ready to enjoy a dance or flirtation, I can assure you. Kate Daly—that was her name—went to help the ladies unshawl themselves and to be ready with needle and thread when an unhappy damsel with torn skirt or flounce should require her assistance.

"She was then 28, and the young girlish beauty had developed into the most lovely of women. Only when her face was at rest, and you caught the suspicion of an anxious heart upon it, would you have guessed her age. She wore a pale tea-rose tinted gown, with ruffles of lace of her own making at the neck and sleeves. It was a wild and stormy night without, just such a one as this, but it only served to enhance the brightness and animation of the scene within. The dancing of the high-heeled shoes and the silvery laughter rose higher than the wail of the wind, and the tinkling wine-cups drowned all sound of rain.

"Suddenly there was a lull; we stopped in our dances; a chill blast seemed to have entered the room; we turned and saw a silent, dark figure standing in the doorway. He was tall and handsome, but his large black cloak, carefully slung over his shoulder, was dripping with the rain and making large pools on the floor. His legs, booted and spurred, were mud up to the hips. Just at that moment the clock struck 12, and the year 1816 was broken. Some of the more excitable girls screamed and ran behind their partners. Was it an apparition? Was it an ill omen for the coming year?

"'I seem to frighten you, good people. Does nobody know me?'

"Kitty at that moment was bringing in a jug of iced claret at another door. She heard the voice and turned round, trembling, with a wild cry, 'Kinloch, Kinloch, I knew you would come back!' And amid a crash of breaking glass—for she let the vessel slip from her hands—she bounded to his side, and then disappeared in the folds of his great cloak."

"How splendid, Aunt Bell!" said her niece, drawing a deep breath; "but if she married him then I do not see why she should not have done so before."

"Ah, but she was a wise girl, little one; she knew it would test his constancy and prove if he really loved her. A young man's love at 21 (as she knew very well), would not be his choice at 31."

"What became of them, aunt?"

"Oh, they married, and traveled about a good deal, and finally both died out in India within a few months of each other. There was one son, and I believe he is in the army also. Come; Kitty, I shall go to bed, and not wait up any longer for your father."

"There is a new lieutenant coming in Mr. Perry's place," said her niece as she bade her good night.

"The young men are not what they used to be," sighed the old lady. "Some little whipper-snapper, I'll be bound, with feet that would go in your slippers. Good night, childie!"

Kitty went slowly downstairs and pondered over in her mind the story of the beautiful Kate Daly and the faithful Kinloch. She went to the window and undid the shutter. She pictured to herself the young man coming to the window and scratching his name on the glass, and then taking the girl's hand in his own, slowly guiding it just below.

She leant in the deep shadow of the window-seat and strove to realize each scene in the little drama. There, under that very door, stood the black-robed figure they had all shrank away from in the midst of their mirth. What? Was she dreaming? What stood there at that very moment?

A figure darker than the gloom of the room. The rain poured in floods outside, and the wind whistled and moaned round the corners of the house. The figure came a little further into the room. She saw, by the misty light, he was a tall man, with a dark cloak over his shoulders, booted and spurred, with mud up to his hips.

She felt as if the whole scene was to be played again before her very eyes; but she looked in vain for the pretty girls and ladies in their puffed sleeves and short waists, their flowing curls and high-heeled shoes. Kitty, where was she? And here she blushed to herself in the darkness.

There was a Kitty, but not the one.

The man came up to the window, evidently thinking no one was in the room.

The girl shrank back as the wet cloak brushed against her cheek. "Kinloch!" she said, half doubting whether the figure would answer, for she could hardly tell yet if she was dreaming or no.

"Who spoke my name?" he called out, startled and looking round.

"I did," said Kitty, feeling very abashed, almost at his elbow.

He glanced down, drawing away his cloak.

"I am sure I beg your pardon. I thought the room was empty. I must have come into the wrong quarters; arriving so late I must have mistaken the block. I hope you will forgive such an intrusion?"

Kitty's grand castles in the air all fell to the ground with a crash. How commonplace! He was only the new lieutenant, after all; but he did not look the whipper-snapper her aunt had prophesied.

"Then you are not Kinloch?" she said, in a disappointed tone.

"My name is Kinloch," he answered, with a pleasant smile.

"My aunt was telling me about this Kinloch." And Kitty tapped the frame with her finger. "I will tell you the story some day, if you like; but you came into the room just as she said your namesake did, dressed in the same way and everything. But, there! I suppose you are not even a relation."

"He was my father," said the young man, quietly. "So no wonder we are something alike."

It was now his turn to say, in a disappointed tone: "But your name is not Kitty, I am sure."

"Yes, it is," said Kitty, eagerly. Then she stopped; a sudden rosy flush rushed over her face. "At least, no—it is—"

But she could not deny it, for it was Kitty.

"These are our namesakes; shall we write our names below them, Kitty?"

"Some day, perhaps."

Chronic Diseases.

A Special Study for Years.

Dr. F. B. BREWER

Has made Chronic Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Nerves and Blood.

A special treatment for years. He is not a boastful, ignorant pretender, but an educated physician, seeking to do good, by devoting his talent and energies to the treatment of a class of maladies that have been with him a long and patient study. To be able to treat successfully chronic diseases it requires that a physician should be a sound, thorough scholar in the art of science and medicine generally. He should give his entire time to their study, be thorough in his investigations and have a long and varied experience. Dr. Brewer claims to work no wonders or to do any more than any well educated physician can do, who devotes his whole time to the study and treatment of chronic diseases exclusively, and has had his many years' of experience. For years Dr. Brewer has visited the the places he now visits, and has obtained his reputation by being honest in his dealings, candid in opinions and reasonable in his charges. Those who are afflicted are invited to call, investigate and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing to do so. Address all letters to Briefets.

—Hurrah! for the successful candidate of the Chicago republican convention.

—Judge J. B. Cassoday, of the supreme court, was in the city to-day.

—Western Star Lodge No. 14, F. and A. M., occupy Masonic hall this evening.

—Oriental Lodge No. 22, Knights of Pythias, assemble in Castle hall, this evening.

—Janesville City Lodge No. 90, I. O. O. F., meet in weekly session this evening in Odd Fellow's hall.

—Hon. Andrew Barlass, of Harmony, went to Chicago this noon to attend the republican national convention.

—A defective stove pipe caused the destruction of the dwelling house of Mr. John Brennan, of Fulton, on Saturday last.

—Colonel W. B. Britton went to Rockford to-day, on business; he intends going to Chicago to-morrow and take a look at the president makers.

—During the storm on Sunday, the lightning struck and killed a cow and two steers, belonging to Mr. Henry Fellows, residing on section three, town of Center.

—There were sixteen hundred and eight volumes drawn from the public library during the month of May, against sixteen hundred and seventy-nine for the month of April.

—The city assessors are now at work taking accounts of the stocks of merchandise, and request that interested parties make out their lists that the assessors will not be unnecessarily delayed in making the collection.

—Some of our patriotic business men are quietly talking of calling a public meeting to make arrangements for a rousing Fourth of July celebration, and a meeting will undoubtedly be called in a few days, for the appointment of the proper committees.

—Mr. John Shortney, who has been very sick for the past two months, has so far recovered as to be able to be out around his home and take short drives around the city. Two other members of his family are down with the fever, but under the careful nursing of Mrs. Shortney, it is hoped will soon be out again.

—The campaign will open with a boom as soon as the Chicago convention, now in session, adjourns. Political booms are in order this year; if the country could boom it out by the first of November and then take a political rest till the opening of the next century, and give us a little time to attend to business, the result would be very satisfactory.

—The motto of every loyal republican voter should be "The man who is nominated at the Chicago convention this week will be the next president." He will be a man worthy of support at all events, be he a dark horse or a shining light. The republican party fully appreciates this fact, and will not be slow in showing their appreciation.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kenniston will go to Waukesha the last of this week, having been appointed to take charge of one of the "families" in the state industrial school. The appointment is a good one, as Mr. Kenniston is well qualified to fill the position in every particular, in which he will be ably assisted by his wife. Their many friends in Janesville will wish them good luck in their new home and position.

—Party loyalty this year means success for the republicans and defeat for the democrats. It is a year when factions should be unknown. With a long, strong, and steady pull, dating from the day of the republican nomination, and increasing in force as the campaign progresses, the republican party is as sure of success, as it is of an existence. Union, and strength go together; they will not be seperated in the canvass of 1884.

—The people of the town of Fulton, near Indian Ford, were visited by a destructive wind storm yesterday, which came with almost the force of a cyclone. The large tobacco shed belonging to Mr. Silas Hurd, together with a wind mill, was completely wrecked. The shed was valued at one thousand dollars. Some damages was experienced in other parts of the town, but we have not learned the extent.

—All persons attending the fifth annual reunion of the Southwestern Wisconsin Veteran Association, to be held in Darlington, June 12th and 13th, will pay fare at the rate of one and one-fifth fare. In coming they will pay full fare, and upon obtaining a return certificate of H. S. Keene, adjutant general of the association, they will be returned at one-fifth fare. The preparations for the gathering of the old veterans is fast approaching completion.

Quarterly Meeting.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Rock Co. Agricultural Society will be held at the court house in Janesville Saturday June 7th at 2 P. M. All stockholders are requested to be present as business of importance will come before the meeting.

W. T. VANKIRK, Secretary.

Racked in body and destressed in mind—this is the fate of the unfortunate victim of rheumatism or neuralgia. The wife of Morris O. Williams, of West Exeter, N. Y., had suffered terribly for a long time and had not been able to get out of bed without help for months, when she took Athlophoros, and now feels like a new being, entirely cured by one bottle. Mr. Williams says he would pay one hundred dollars for one bottle rather than be without it.

Trinity Church Parish.

At the annual parish meeting of Trinity church, held at the chapel yesterday forenoon the following gentlemen were elected wardens and vestrymen for the ensuing year,

Senior Warden—J. B. Doe,

Junior Warden—J. O. Metcalf.

The report was concurred in.

Ald. Palmer, of the highway, street and bridge committee, reported in favor of granting the petition of H. S. Woodruff and others, for a sidewalk in front of a piece of city property in the first ward, and moved it be granted, which was adopted, and a gravel walk was ordered built.

Ald. Daly stated that the aldermen of the fifth ward were unable to agree upon a location of the fire cistern in that ward, and moved that the council locate it at the central school house. There was considerable discussion over this motion, and the whole matter was finally referred to the fire department committee, the chief engineer, and the aldermen of the fifth ward, to report at the next meeting.

Health Officer Dr. O. P. Robinson made a statement relating to the bill of Mrs. Mary Sheffield for taking care of the late Mrs. Price, and after the question had been thoroughly discussed, the bill, $33.88 was allowed.

E. M. Hyzer, Esq., appeared before the council in behalf of Marshal Hogan, and asked the council to appoint an evening to investigate the insinuations and charges made against him at the last meeting of the council. The council seemed to forget all about the matter, and not recollecting that any charges had been made, concluded that they did not have any business with an investigation, and so let the matter drop. The readiness with which the council disposed of the matter indicated that no suspicion whatever rested on Marshal Hogan.

Ald. Potter introduced an ordinance allowing the Banker's and Merchant's telegraph company to put up their wires in this city. The ordinance was read twice, rules suspended, and the same passed.

Ald. Palmer, introduced an ordinance extending High street to Western avenue, and changing the name of Jackson street in Rockport to High Passed under suspension of rules.

Ald. McLean, that street commissioner repair approach to the river at foot of School street. Adopted.

Also, establishing the grades of a portion of Dodge, Union, and Jackson streets. Adopted,

Ald. Potter, an order for a gas lamp post, at the south east corner of west Bluff and———street. Referred to gas committee, and subsequently adopted.

Ald. Potter, for a crosswalk across west Milwaukee street, in front of post office, Adopted.

Ald Burnham, an order for a concrete cross walk across Main street on the north side of East Milwaukee street. Adopted.

Ald. Shearer, that the street commissioner raise the cross walk on River street above the railway bridge. Adopted.

Also, build a tile culvert on Mineral Point avenue, and a box culvert across the west side of Madison street, on Wall street, and make repairs on Madison street between West Bluff and Wall street. Adopted.

Ald. Palmer, that street commissioner build a stone cross walk on Rock street, east side of High street. Adopted.

Ald. Palmer, that the city clerk be instructed to publish the required notice concerning the extension of Dickson street. Adopted.

Ald. Rooney, that the street commissioner raise the cross walk at Racine street, so as to conform with the established grade. Adopted.

Ald. Smith, an order authorizing the pay of special policemen for May 30th and June 1st, as follows—S. Herrick, $2; C. H. Lee, $2; J. H. Dyer, $6. Adopted.

There was considerable amusement around the board by Mr. Thomas Madden appearing with a statement that about three years ago some of his cows got out of the pasture, fell into Marshal, Hogan's hands and were impounded, and that he was obliged to pay the pound master the sum of $13 before he could recover his bovines. He desired the council to pay the bill, or authorize the pound master to refund the amount.

Ald. Potter moved that the clerk draw an order on the pound master for the amount.

Ald. Daly moved as an amendment that the matter be referred to the highway, street and bridge committee.

The council did not appear to be in the proper mood for remitting fines and both motions went down for want of a second.

Ald. McLean, that Mr. M. H. Curtis be allowed two weeks more time to complete the grade of Linn street. Adopted.

The council adjourned.

THE COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The jury in the Broderick case agreed upon a verdict at three o'clock this morning, which was announced at the opening of court this morning. The jury found the defendant guilty as charged.

The case of Norcross against Griffith, which was commenced on yesterday, is progressing.

MUNICIPAL COURT.

Thomas Nash and Michael Joice wer each fined $7 and costs, $2.98—being implicated in the assault upon Hugh Joice May 14th. Both young men paid the bill.

James Rice was found guilty of the charge of carrying concealed weapons, and sent to the county jail for thirty days.

This afternoon the Punchon adultery case is occupying the attention of the court.

A wise mother; one who always has a bottle of Downs' Elixir in the house to give the baby in case of croup. Sold by Stearns & Baker.

Rivalry.

A family in the first ward were entertained last evening at the tea table by a discussion between two of the youthful members as to which was the oldest.

Mary, the little ten year old girl, said: "Well, I was born before you was, anyway, Charley-boy."

Charley is eight years old and inherits a disposition to be on the contrary side, so he answered:

"No you wasn't, either. I was born at the same time."

With a scornful laugh, Mary answered: "Well you must be a twin then."

This was a puzzle for the little fellow, but without much hesitation he answered,

"Well, I was born just after you was anyhow; I am bigger than you are if I aint a twin."

A Youthful Smoker.

Passing along one of the busy streets of Chicago, a few days ago, was noticed a newsboy, of diminutive size. His uniform indicated that he belonged to the regular force. It was composed of a pair of pantaloons, rolled up at the bottom and with the waist extending well down towards the knee. They were evidently an heir-loom, and the principle trouble with them, was, that the youthful recipient had come into possession of the property at too tender an age. If he lives to attain his majority, and the garment don't wear out, a little unrolling at the bottom will be all that is necessary to insure a fit.

A colored shirt, and small black cap, completed his toilet; with a bundle of papers under his arm, a crust of bread in one hand, and a cigarette in the other, he presented a picture worth considering. As we stopped to look him over, we involuntarily threw away our cigar and said, here is a subject that the American boy would do well to study. Hardly old enough to be away from home alone and yet with a taste so cultivated for tobacco as to enjoy it with a dry lunch. If you must smoke, boys, wait until you are twenty-one and big enough to wear your father's old clothes without taking in a reef at the bottom.

We never see a boy trying to acquire the manly art without a feeling of pity. You can smoke away money enough and constitution enough if you don't commence until the latter is fully developed. The chances are that you will be bankrupt of money, and destitute of a constitution if you commence life as a smoker.

The Weather.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 62 degrees above zero. Cloudy with east wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 81 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with northeast wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago, the register was 56 and 64 degrees above zero.

All those who have used Baxter's Mandrake Bitters speak very strongly in their praise. Twenty-five cents per bottle here. Sold by Stearns & Baker.

Happiness.

Stopping out of a cab in front of the Palmer house, in Chicago, the other day was a newly married couple, fresh from the rural districts of the Hoosier state. The bride was arrayed in a costume and white hat that had all the appearance of being new, and which instinctively informed you that this was her first bridal tour. The groom, in black suit and straw hat, would hardly have been distinguished from any other young man, except that he carried carefully in one hand a wreath of flowers. As the young couple advanced timidly into the corridor of the hotel and looked around for a place to sit down, it was evident that they were enjoying their first experience away from home. The door to the passenger elevator near by opened and as others passed in they also wandered in and sat down. When the last floor was reached, they stepped out, and the last seen of them they were promenading up and down the big hall, arm in arm, with the wreath of flowers as an accompaniment. A bell boy was sent up with a stick of gum and if the convention has not crowded the young couple out, they are probably wandering around the upper story of the hotel yet.

That taint of scrofula in your blood can be wholly eradicated by Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Milton.

—For the first time since 1878, this locality was favored with pleasant weather on Memorial day. The exercises were held in the park and shortly before 2 o'clock A. D. Hamilton Post, G. A. R., and the Ladies' Auxiliary society connected with the post, marched into the park. Several hundred people assembled and at 2 o'clock the exercises opened with music by a double male quartette under the direction of Miss Mate Haven and after the post had gone through with proper ceremonies prescribed by their ritual, Post Commander Clarke called upon President Whitford, who offered an appropriate prayer. Major S. S. Rockwood, of Janesville, was then introduced and for thirty minutes held the close attention of his audience with one of the finest efforts that a Milton audience ever listened to—in fact everybody was very much pleased with the major's oration and did not hesitate to say so. A. M. Carrer, of Johnstown, was present, but declined to speak when called upon. At the conclusion of the oration, the College Cadets, G. A. R. Post, Auxiliary society, pupils of the graded school, college students and citizens formed in procession and marched to the cemetery, where the graves were handsomely decorated, and then the post proceeded to the junction cemetery and did a similar good work. All things considered, it was the most successful observance of memorial day that Milton ever had.

—D. P. Lane, who for many years has resided in the north part of town, died last Wednesday quite suddenly. Deceased had been quite sick for some months previous to his death, but had so far recovered as to be able to get about for a few days prior to his death. Mr. Lane was for some years the most extensive bee keeper in this locality, and was a brother of Mr. W. H. Lane, of this village. The funeral took place Thursday at the Otter creek church, and the burial here. The funeral was quite largely attended by the neighbors of the deceased.

—W. A. Thompson, of the Midland Publishing company, Madison, was in town Wednesday shaking hands with old friends.

—Miss Bell, of Johnstown, visited at Mrs. Alexander's last week.

—Henry Bacon has sold his house and lot to Mr. Cary, of Johnstown, who takes possession July first. Mr. Bacon reserved a lot east of the house and will build a new residence thereon the present season.

—James Pierce has rebuilt the barn on the Gardner Hall place.

—Wilbur and Hurd have the contract for building Palmiter's new house and are now at work on the job.

—Clarke's alligator gave up the ghost Wednesday, and is to be stuffed and placed on exhibition in the college cabinet. Too much frost, or a lack of sustenance is the supposed cause of his death.

—Dr. Borden is able to be out again after being confined to the house for two weeks.

—Mrs. E. P. Healy, of Britt, Iowa, came here last week to see her uncle, W. G. Hamilton, who is very ill, with but little hope of recovery.

—Persons who subscribed for the purpose of assisting Mr. Lane in rebuilding his mill are requested to leave the amount at the bank, where they will find the subscription list.

—W. B. Anderson returned from Kearney, Nebraska, Friday. He thinks Milton a better place to reside in than Kearney.

—Dr. L. L. Bond, of West Side, Iowa, was in town Memorial Day and marched with his old comrades. He is looking well and doing well.

—J. W. McGowan, of Delaware, Ohio, was in town last Saturday and Sunday shaking hands with friends, who were glad to see him so fully recovered from his dangerous illness of a few weeks since.

—Dr. E. S. Bailey returned to Chicago Monday morning.

—A fishing party composed of P. M. Green, E. S. Bailey, F. P. Stannard and son, C. W. Cramb and W. P. and W. W. Clarke were at Koshkonong Sunday and brought home seventy-five pickerel, pike and bass—the finest string of fish that have been brought into Milton this season.

—A change of time took effect on the St. Paul road Sunday. The Madison train now leaves at 11:28 A. M., instead of 1:34 P. M., and the train for Janesville leaves at 1:15 P. M. instead of 1:40. No other changes of interest to the public.

A Case Not Beyond Help.

Dr. M. H. Hinsdale, Kenawee, Ill., advises us of a remarkable cure of Consumption. He says: "A neighbor's wife was attacked with violent lung disease, and pronounced beyond help from Quick Consumption. As a last resort the family was persuaded to try DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. To the astonishment of all, by the time she had used one-half dozen bottles she was about the house doing her own work."

Leon & Cushman.

The famous Leon & Cushman minstrel company will appear at the opera house on Thursday evening of this week. This is one of the best minstrel combinations in America; the original and only Leon will be here, supported by other stars of no less reputation. The Syracuse Courier, of March 19th says:—"Last evening the above troupe appeared at the Grand opera house before a large and fashionable audience. The company embraces the only Leon, Frank Cushman, those old favorites Eugene, J. H. Surridge and others equally well known. The entertainment given was of an entirely new character, and was in the highest degree successful. A play was performed called "Sarah Barnum's Dilemma," in which was included a most laughable burlesque on "Fedora." Interspersed are singing, dancing, and the performance was of a most enjoyable and pleasing character. Leon is seen at his best and so is Frank Cushman. The audience was convulsed with laughter from beginning to end. The company gives a matinee to-day for the benefit of ladies and children and making its last appearance this evening.'
